2 Code

Our code is licenced under the MIT agreement. This means it is free to use, copy, modify, merge, publish, distribute, sublicense and/or sell. Note this includes the right to link it with code using other licences.

3 Pictures

All pictures used in the browser version of our application are our property (photoshop projects or original photographs). The iOS application does not contain any media so far.

4 Other issues

4.1 Release version

If Kerb.It was ever released, contract law would have to apply to all users and we would have to deal with taxes.

4.2 Testing frameworks and VCS

Teamcity, Travis, Git, etc. need no further attention as they do not modify the final product.
